HOPES FOR EARLY ACTION ON CONTINUED DRAFT AND PEACE TIME TRAINING ARE SPIKED

Washington, Jan. 31.—(P)—The house military committee today spiked administration hopes of early action on a continued draft law and universal military training.

It decided to concentrate instead on a new national defense act. A special nine-man sub-committee was assigned to work out recommendations for this measure which will blueprint the overall peace-time structure of the army.

The army, meanwhile, moved to step up the flow of replacements for long-service GI's overseas. The training period for future replacements was ordered cut to eight weeks. Previously 13 to 17 weeks' training was required.

The war department has been claiming that it is hard put to provide sufficient replacements to keep pace with the present rate of demobilization. In addition, the army disclosed it is going to let families of officers and top non-coms join them overseas.

The big tipoff of an extended occupation job was the announcement that priority will go to families of men agreeing to remain abroad two more years, or at least one.

Personnel affected by the announcement are commissioned and warrant officers; masters, first, technical and staff sergeants and certain war department civilian employees whose families are authorized by law to travel at federal expense.

For the time being, at least, dependents of the lower enlisted grades will not be permitted to go overseas, war department officials studying a proposal to include them in the program later.

Even for families technically eligible there were some catches in the program announced late yesterday by the war department.

In the first place, theatre commanders must certify that adequate housing, food and medical care is available.

Applications must originate with the men overseas, not with their dependents.

The war department indicated that the movement of the first dependents to Europe is expected to start some time after April 1.

A month later it will get under way to the Philippines, Japan, Korea and the Ryukyu Island chain.

The Russians, if they press the cases, will find themselves in the unique position of asking the UNO to act in the absence of complaints from the countries involved.

Greek delegates, planning to be on hand when the questions come up, were ready to argue that British troops are necessary in Greece to maintain order. The Netherlands, as a member of the 11-nation council, is known to favor the maintenance of British troops in Java, and even the unrecognized Indonesian government has expressed the view that British troops should remain there until all Japanese troops have been disarmed and removed.

Soviet delegates have given no intimation of their position since the complaints were filed. Moscow, however, accused Britain today of exerting "political pressure" in Greece.

A Russian commentator said Greece was in the throes of a "national economic disaster," charged that the presence of British troops hampered recovery and added that British troops have "become a means of bringing pressure to bear on the political situation."

Legal Service Available To Vet When Refused Old Job
Washington, Jan. 31.—(P)—What should a veteran do when he is told to get his old job back? The justice department's top official on veterans' affairs, assistant Attorney General John P. Sonnett, gave this answer today: Consult the nearest United States attorney.

In an interview, Sonnett said U. S. attorneys have a specific statutory duty to give legal services without charge in cases involving veterans' re-employment rights. There are 98 such attorneys in strategic cities throughout the country.

Many veterans, Sonnett said, are not aware that the justice department is specifically charged by law with protecting their jobs. This includes giving legal advice and representing the veteran in court.

While noting that reported violations are increasing with "several hundred" complaints before the department's new veterans' affairs section, Sonnett emphasized this point:

"The overwhelming majority of employers have taken veterans back in the same or better jobs. The cases we have represent but a minute fraction of the veterans who sought and got back their old jobs."

If a veteran for any reason is unable to contact a U. S. attorney, he may write directly to the veterans affairs section, department of justice, Washington. Many already are doing this.

Some, however, ask for help on matters over which the department has no jurisdiction. For example, a veteran who has a brush with the law or who desires to get a divorce cannot call on a U. S. attorney to represent him.

But on many miscellaneous legal matters he can ask for assistance. Help in enforcing his preference right to surplus property is one.

RUSSIAN-IRAN SETTLEMENT ENCOURAGING
London, Jan. 31.—(P)—United Nations delegates privately expressed hope today that the security council's compromise decision on the Russian-Iranian dispute will point the way to an amicable settlement on the Greek and Indonesian cases which come before the peace agency tomorrow.

Whether the latter two cases can be settled without UNO intervention, however, depends largely upon the Russians, who filed complaints with the council charging the British were endangering the peace by military actions in Greece and Indonesia.

The Russians, if they press the cases, will find themselves in the unique position of asking the UNO to act in the absence of complaints from the countries involved.

Greek delegates, planning to be on hand when the questions come up, were ready to argue that British troops are necessary in Greece to maintain order. The Netherlands, as a member of the 11-nation council, is known to favor the maintenance of British troops in Java, and even the unrecognized Indonesian government has expressed the view that British troops should remain there until all Japanese troops have been disarmed and removed.

The Steel Strike Situation In Brief

Pittsburgh, Jan. 31.—(P)—The 11-day-old strike of 750,000 CIO-United Steelworkers in brief:

Pinch—Another 10,000 workers laid off in allied industries due to steel shortage, making 54,000 to date; Ford Motor Company to furnish 10,000 more tomorrow.

Dispute—Chairman Irving S. Olds of U. S. Steel says government must allow steel price increase "greatly in excess of $9.25 a ton" if industry is to pay the 18½ cents hourly wage increase recommended by President Truman and accepted by the union.

Contracts—Fifty steel fabricating concerns employing nearly 19,000 U.S.W. members have signed new agreements with the union and resumed operations; most of the contracts grant the 18½-cent pay raise.

Under All American's plan to operate widespread feeder and pickup operations, Stringer declared, airmail service would be made available to all.

All American is one of 31 airlines seeking CAB approval of charters to expand their field of operations.

Stringer said "there has been a phenomenal growth in operations of our five pickup routes." He said the routes handled 2,961,808 pieces of mail monthly last year, high mark of a gradual increase from the 195,329 total in 1942.

All American is seeking, Stringer said, to put 291 cities and towns on the air map in a move that would "blanket" Delaware, Maryland, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Virginia, North Carolina, Ohio and Kentucky.

Stringer asserted the company intends becoming one of the "big airlines" in the U. S.

"We hope to establish a network of passenger and air pickup lines in the middle Atlantic area," Stringer told CAB Examiner Charles Frederick in regional hearings here.

A total of 31 airlines seek charters to expand air routes or establish new ones connecting New England, the east, the south and parts of Ohio in a vast air network that will give hundreds of small towns airports.

Striking Vets Eligible For Jobless Pay
Harrisburg, Jan. 31.—(P)—Pennsylvania veterans, made idle in strikes, are eligible for state unemployment compensation provided they established necessary wage credits before they began war service.

This ruling, announced by Governor Martin, was made by Attorney General James H. Duff at the request of William H. Chestnut, secretary of labor and industry, and is effective at once.

The question arose after the Veterans Administration in Washington held that veterans involved directly in work stoppages were ineligible for federal benefits under the GI bill of rights.

Pennsylvania law, on the other hand, permits maximum payments of $20 a week for 20 weeks to workers in cases of strikes after a five-week waiting period, although another provision requiring veterans to exhaust federal benefits before obtaining state payments was thought by some to bar them from similar payments.

Nearly 600 veterans came to the state capitol last week to demand such an interpretation as well as a special session of the legislature to act on housing and a veterans bonus.

Governor Martin, however, said Chestnut had asked for an interpretation on the state law as it affects veterans on Jan. 3, three weeks before the veterans group visited Harrisburg.

Unity Conference In China Adjourns
By SPENCER MOOSA
Chungking, Jan. 31.—(P)—China's unity conference, with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek presiding, formally approved today all decisions reached by sub-committees charting the nation's future.

With that action taken, the unity session, known as the Political Consultation Conference, then adjourned—21 days after it was convened.

Chiang entertained the delegates afterward at a dinner in the hall of ceremonies at government headquarters, where the all-party deliberations began Jan. 10.

The generalissimo had presided when the powerful standing committee of the Kuomintang (National) party earlier in the day approved the work of the sub-committees.

All American Plans Airmail Service To Smaller Towns

Philadelphia, Jan. 31.—(P)—Direct airmail service would be available to residents of virtually all eastern small towns under a plan proposed today by Harry R. Stringer, vice president in charge of traffic of All American Aviation, Inc.

Stringer told Charles Frederick, civil aeronautics board examiner, All American "wants to give airmail service to small towns." He pointed out that letters sent by air from rural or small areas must first go by train to metropolitan centers.

Under All American's plan to operate widespread feeder and pickup operations, Stringer declared, airmail service would be made available to all.

All American is one of 31 airlines seeking CAB approval of charters to expand their field of operations.

Stringer said "there has been a phenomenal growth in operations of our five pickup routes." He said the routes handled 2,961,808 pieces of mail monthly last year, high mark of a gradual increase from the 195,329 total in 1942.

British Loan Proposal Hits Double Snag
Washington, Jan. 31.—(P)—The controversial $3,750,000,000 British loan proposal hit a double snag today at the very start of its stormy course across capitol hill.

While there were some prospects that the loan bill might clear the barrier Senator Lange (R-ND) raised to its immediate introduction in that filibuster-worried chamber, the problem of committee action was badly complicated.

The bill is due to be referred to the senate banking committee. But Chairman Wagner (D-NY) and the second ranking Democrat, Senator Glass (Va), both are ill and Senator Barkley (D-Ky), next in line as acting chairman, is fully preoccupied as chairman of the Pearl Harbor investigating committee.

The house banking committee provided the second snag.

Chairman Spence (D-Ky) tossed the loan bill in the house hopper yesterday but said his committee cannot begin a study of the legislation until price control legislation is out of the way. That probably will be some time in March.

UNARMED U. S. SOLDIERS USED AS TARGETS

Belgian Citizens Describe Before Tribunal Cold-Blooded Massacre In the Bulge

WOUNDED FINISHED OFF

By DANIEL DE LUCE

Nuernberg, Jan. 31.—(P)—A German officer used a group of unarmed American prisoners of war for target practice as a prelude to the cold-blooded execution of 129 captured soldiers during the battle of the bulge last winter, the international military tribunal was told today.

The French prosecution introduced a statement by Belgian civilians describing the massacre, which occurred at a crossroads near Saint Vith on Dec. 12, 1944.

The Americans, defending the crossroads against a Nazi defensive, took to the ditch 'es as German tanks approached, the statement said, and the tanks fired into the ditches until the Americans threw down their guns and raised their hands in surrender.

They were led to a field a short distance away, where the Germans searched each man, taking watches, rings and other personal effects, the statement continued.

Then a German armored vehicle was rolled up and its guns trained on the group of prisoners. A Nazi officer mounted on the vehicle drew his pistol, aimed at the group and fired. One of the prisoners fell, the statement said.

He aimed and fired again. Another American fell.

As the second man went down, the statement went on, the machine guns on the armored vehicle opened up and sprayed lead for two or three minutes. Then the vehicle moved on and three others rolled past, machine gunning the knot of men, most of them already dead.

Later, German soldiers walked among the Americans, finishing off the wounded, the statement said.

"The soldiers struck them with gun butts and fired from a short distance into their temples or between their eyes," the document asserted.

"The shame of this deed will remain upon the German army," it said. "We knew these men were unarmed and had surrendered."

Earlier, the tribunal heard that

Suit To Limit Picketing Is Under Attack

Pittsburgh, Jan. 31.—(P)—A Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation injunction suit to limit picketing at its Homestead works was attacked by the CIO-United Steelworkers today on grounds the company's action had not complied with requirements of the Pennsylvania anti-injunction law.

Union Attorney Eugene Cotton declared the suit did not fulfill these requirements.

1. That an open hearing be held on the petition, with testimony from witnesses.

2. Notification of police authorities.

3. Serving of a bill of particulars upon the defendant and the police.

The hearing before Judge Sara M. Soffel opened after a collapse of two days of effort by representatives of the U. S. Steel Corporation and the union to "get together" on picketing arrangements.

Latest reports are to the effect that the employee groups are making a good response to the appeal for one-half hours pay per week for eighty weeks.

And so tonight will tell the story. Each worker has been specially asked to be present and a large gathering is expected.

More reasons why Warren must have better hospital facilities were pointed out in a group discussion in the situation yesterday.

In 1931 the total number of hospital beds of all kinds in the country was 1,048,101. By 1944 there were 1,729,945—an increase of 65%.

General hospitals, on the other hand, had only 393,425 beds ten years ago. By 1944, their capacity had increased by 135% to a total of 925,818 beds for adults.

The Warren General Hospital has not kept pace with this increase. We have a general hospital built for 40 beds into which 60 beds have been crowded. The new buildings will take care of the present over-crowded conditions and provide adequate accommodation for into the foreseeable future.

No Extension For Stricker or License

Harrisburg, Jan. 31.—(P)—The state revenue department reminded motorists of Pennsylvania today automobiles must bear new inspection stickers and drivers must have 1946 operators' licenses after midnight tonight.

"There will be no extension of either the inspection or the license period," a department spokesman said.

So far, 2,500,000 operators' licenses have been issued, an increase of 250,000 over the number issued up to the corresponding date of 1945.

Air Transport Carrying 21 Long Overdue

Denver, Jan. 31.—(P)—A United Air Lines plane was reported long overdue at Denver today and Capt. Frank Crimmon, assistant supervisor of flight operations here, said he believed he had sighted wreckage of the craft on Elk Mountain, northwest of Laramie, Wyo.

Twenty-one persons were aboard the plane. United's flight 14 en route from Seattle to New York.

United's district traffic manager, J. R. Dunlop, said the plane, Flight No. 14, last reported its position over Sinclair, Wyo., at 2:40 a. m. (MST). It was due in Denver at 4:20.

"We're not positive there's been an accident," said Dunlop, "but it certainly looks like it. We're still hoping the plane is down at some emergency field where there is no communication."

At Portland, Ore., an airline official said a fire was sighted on Elk Mountain, Wyo., ten minutes after a missing airliner last reported its position over Sinclair, Wyo. He added that a search party left Tanner, Wyo., for Elk Mountain.

The two-engine Douglas plane, which had last stopped in Boise, Idaho, was bound for New York. Dunlop said it carried 13 military and five civilian passengers, plus a crew of three.

"No bad weather was reported along the plane's route," Dunlop said.

An air lines statement issued this morning said United had flown 1,600,000,000 (B) passengers or miles since its last fatal accident May 1, 1942. Last June, United was given a special Air Transport Association award for safety in wartime flights.

Dunlop said the crew included W. P. Briggs, captain; H. N. Atlas, first officer, and Dorothy Carter, stewardess—all of Portland, Ore. The flight started at Portland at 8:15 last night.

WM. PENN HIGHWAY TO UNDERGO IMPROVEMENT
Harrisburg, Jan. 31.—(P)—Bids will be asked within 60 days, Secretary of Highways John W. Shroyer announced today, for construction projects to cost $10,000,000 on U. S. route 22, the historic William Penn Highway.

Work will start as soon as the frost is out of the ground, he added.

"When these improvements are made Route 22 will be on a par with any route within the commonwealth," Shroyer declared, pointing out that the highway connects central Pennsylvania with both Philadelphia and Pittsburgh.

Shroyer said plans call for construction of 21.69 miles of road, most of it four lanes in width, and includes a new bridge at Huntingdon to carry the highway over the Pennsylvania railroad and the Juniata river.

Meanwhile in Washington, a showdown appeared near on a bill aimed to curb industrial strife.

The statement said that so far as was known by officials there the personnel center, handling reassignment of soldiers, will continue to function indefinitely.

More than 400,000 officers and enlisted men have received their discharge papers at the separation center since it was established last July, the public relations office said.

RENEWAL OF WAGE OFFER IS REJECTED

Corporation Unwilling To Continue Union Membership Clause In New Contract

FORD FACES SHUTDOWN

By the Associated Press

Forty congressmen called on the U. S. Steel and General Motors Corporations today to accept federal recommendations for settling strikes in the steel and automobile industries.

At the same time General Motors executives arranged to resume negotiations with the CIO United Auto Workers in Detroit, a spokesman for the CIO packinghouse workers contended the government had assumed a "moral obligation" to boost their wages, and CIO President Philip Murray met with Secretary of the Treasury Fred M. Vinson.

The congressmen's recommendations were contained in a round-robin letter made public in Washington by Rep. Hook (D-Mich). It urged GM to accept a fact-finding board's recommendation for a wage increase of 19½ cents an hour and asked U. S. Steel to agree to President Truman's proposal for an 18½ cents hourly wage hike.

The proposal came as early hopes for a swift settlement of the two major strikes appeared to dim.

GM officials arranged another conference with the union in renewed efforts to settle the 72-day-old strike of 179,000, the disputants were far apart on two issues—wages and maintenance of union membership.

The corporation's announcement that it was not willing to renew any maintenance of union membership clause in a new contract with the UAW-CIO came after the union had rejected GM's renewal of a temporary 13½ cent hourly wage increase (12 percent) The union is demanding a 30 percent pay boost.

Also in Detroit, Henry Ford, president of Ford Motor Company, demanded that the federal government lift price controls and he warned that unless his company could get steel promptly "we will have to shut down completely some time this week."

Ford, in a telegram to Reconstruction Director John W. Snyder, estimated it would cost $400,000 a day to maintain idle assembly lines and that at "current OPA price ceilings, we are losing $300 on every car we make." He said operations have been curtailed because of lack of parts and materials and that some suppliers have stopped making parts "because they lost money at their ceiling prices."

Of the 54,000 workers laid off in steel related industries because of the walkout of nearly 750,000 CIO steelworkers, about 20,000 were from Ford plants. These include 8,000 assembly line workers at the Rouge plant at Detroit made idle today. Other Ford Company plant and department shutdowns between now and Feb. 4, due to the steel strike, now in its 11th day, will make idle at least another 10,000 workers.

James F. Dewey, special federal mediator in the General Motors dispute, planned to meet separately with company and union officials before the principals renewed their "across the table" negotiations. He said he did not know which of the two major issues now was the larger stumbling block in the path of settlement, wages or maintenance of membership.

Meanwhile in Washington, a showdown appeared near on a bill aimed to curb industrial strife.

In Washington, the working committee of the national shipbuilding wage conference planned another meeting today as government and union leaders urged an 18 cent hourly increase for the country's 450,000 shipbuilding workers.

Hospital Campaign Workers Meet Tonight For Last Reports

Tonight is the night. The night when the workers for the Warren General Hospital Campaign make their reports and learn whether they have reached their objective. Present reports indicate that success is in sight, but it is thoroughly understood by each worker that the final contributions are the hardest to get.

Ninety-four thousand dollars must be gathered between last Monday evening and the report to be made tonight. The meeting will be at the usual place—Y. W. C. A.—at 7:30 p. m. The Rev. Beecher M. Rutledge will open the meeting and Chairman Eaton will immediately call the roll. Great things are expected of Mrs. E. G. Hamilton's Division of Women, and Tom Armstrong's Commercial Group say they will have their biggest report of the Campaign.

The dark horse division A-B under K. M. Andrews, E. V. Lesser and C. S. Allen, must come up with some surprises. In spite of the effect the steel and other strikes have on the thinking of the employees of the plants in this area, latest reports are to the effect that the employee groups are making a good response to the appeal for one-half hours pay per week for eighty weeks.

And so tonight will tell the story. Each worker has been specially asked to be present and a large gathering is expected.

He intends to enlarge his production and will increase the number of hives he has. At present he has 35 hives and will add 25 more which will give him 60 in all. From these he anticipates to garner three tons or more of honey next fall. Mr. Weborg supplies the Loblaw and A. and P. stores in Warren, Oil City and Jamestown with his honey. He already has glass containers on hand for next fall's crop. Local Attorney Of Prominence Passes Away

Lewis Jamieson, one of Warren's best known men, passed away at his home on Market street at 12:40 this morning after an illness covering a period of two and one-half years. His death, while not wholly unexpected, came as a shock to his large circle of friends and acquaintances.

Private funeral services will be held from the residence with the Rev. Beecher Rutledge, of Trinity Memorial Episcopal church, officiating Saturday afternoon at 2:30 with interment in the family plot in Oakland. Friends are asked to please omit flowers.

Lewis Crary Jamieson, son of Marcus W. and Emily Crary Jamieson, was born in Warren borough, August 3, 1889. He was educated in Warren High School and the Mohagan Lake School, at Peekskill, New York, from which he was graduated in 1908. After being a student at Williams College for two years, he matriculated at the University of Pennsylvania Law School, from which he was graduated in 1913, with the degree of Bachelor of Laws.

In addition to his business and professional interests, Mr. Jamieson was always active in the civic affairs of this community. He was one of a group of civic-minded citizens who organized the Warren Airport, a charter member of the Rotary Club, member and past president of the Conewango Club, and member of the Conewango Valley Country Club. His college and professional fraternities include Phi Delta Theta and Phi Delta Phi.

On April 10, 1916, Lewis Crary Jamieson married Julia Bliss Chapin, of Springfield, Mass., who died February 27, 1920. They were the parents of two children, Elizabeth Chapin, who married Robert J. Lay, of New York City, and Emily Chapin Jamieson, who married David Knapp, also of New York. On March 16, 1922, Mr. Jamieson married Marie Botchford, of Warren, and they had two children: Mary Botchford, who married David Beaty III, of Warren, and Lewis Crary, Jr., with the U. S. M. C. R. Three grandchildren also survive, Michael J. Lay and Duncan J. Lay, and Marcia J. Beaty. One brother, Hugh C. Jamieson, of Cobham Park, and one sister, Marcia C. J. Mathews, of McAllen, Texas, also survive.

Lester Store Acquired By Warren Man

P. N. Gilson, who has been associated with the Lester Company, Warren's oldest shoe store, has taken over the business, his many friends and patrons will be pleased to learn. This store has been doing business in the borough for over 28 years. Mr. Gilson started working with the company shortly after they opened in Warren at 303 Second avenue and became manager in April, 1919. He later acquired an interest in the firm, Kemp, of Corning, N. Y., founder of Lester Shoe Stores, and Evan Wetmore, now president of the Milner Kemp Corp., and manager of the Lester Shoe Store in Olean, N. Y.

Mr. Gilson, or "Perc" as he is known to his many friends, was born in Warren and has lived in the fifth ward his entire life. He announces that the establishment will retain the name of Lester Shoe Store and carry the same line of shoes and rubbers which it has carried for over 25 years, with Walk-Over and Endicott-Johnson shoes for men, and Enna Jettick shoes for women being featured. Ball brand rubbers and a complete line of footwear for children, misses and boys will also be carried. "Perc" has been active in various civic affairs for many years. He is a member of the First Baptist church, Masonic order, Elks and Lions club.

The Lester Shoe store has been at its present location, 216 Liberty street, for the past ten years.

UNDIGNIFIED SPECTACLE

Things have gone from bad to worse, as they were bound to, since the failure of the Washington labor-management conference last fall. The economic dangers have increased as disagreement has continued until finally government, all the way up to the White House, has been drawn into the turmoil.

And now we have the extremely undignified spectacle of both sides in industrial disputes tugging at the President's coat tails and trying to pull him into their camp, and exhibiting some rather bad temper if he didn't budge. We behold the head of a meat packer union calling Mr. Truman a strike breaker, and the head of a big steel company addressing lordly suggestions to him through the impersonal medium of a broadcast.

Such exhibitions of bad taste and bad manners are the result of a misconception, common to management and labor leaders alike, that these harmful struggles are being carried on toward a goal of complete victory for a limited class. The consequent behavior of some of the principals in these struggles is an insult to the office of President, to its incumbent, and to the people he represents.

Both management and labor bridle at the suggestion of arbitration made compulsory by law. They proclaim their faith in collective bargaining. Yet they seem to have forgotten that to bargain means to negotiate, to dicker, to come to an agreement. There is no place for arrogance, spitefulness, and an adamant refusal to budge in that definition as it applies to industrial disputes.

Yet those are the characteristics of current labor-management behavior which will force a strong government control of labor-management relations if more reasonable attitudes are not adopted quickly by both parties to the big industrial quarrels.

NOT TUNEFUL, BUT SIGNIFICANT

One account of the Army's radar contact with the moon said that a loud speaker connected with the system picked up the echo as a sound—"not a very tuneful sound, but an echo from the moon."

Well, the cry of a newborn child is not a very tuneful sound, either, but it is significant. Likewise the audible echo from the moon was an unbeautiful notice of arrival and of future promise. It was the latest startling reminder that man is pushing back the forces of friction and gravitation which bind him to earth. It proclaimed a tangible link, through the cold, airless void of cosmic space, with another body of matter in our own small corner of the universe.

This is surely a beginning, not an isolated phenomenon. Some day men will receive an untuneful echo from Mars and the more distant planets. Pulsating waves of electronic energy, indifferent to all obstacles, will speed ever farther to open unimagined horizons to human view. They will present fields for pioneering of a sort which now is thought of as impossibly fantastic, if it can be thought of at all.

SYMBOL OF COURAGE

As America observes the 64th birthday anniversary of Franklin Delano Roosevelt, it is fitting that each of us, no matter how we may have felt about this man's politics or his leadership qualities, should pause to pay humble tribute to him.

For he was a strong leader, a war leader of unparalleled qualities. Even those who most bitterly opposed the late president's domestic policies admitted his abilities and achievements as a war president. Yet it is too early now to appreciate Franklin Delano Roosevelt as to his place in history. Time alone can do that.

But today, as another campaign for the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, nears its close, one fact of this man's life stands out undeniably, sharply etched against a kaleidoscopic background of stirring events, great controversies, and sharply-drawn friendships and enmities:

Franklin Delano Roosevelt's indomitable courage in overcoming personally the scourge of infantile paralysis, and his subsequent establishment of a nation-wide movement aimed at the eradication of the disease, is the marvel and inspiration of all afflicted humanity.

T-H-O-U-G-H-T-S

Thine own mouth condemneth thee, and not I; yea, thine own lips testify against thee.—Job 15:6.

In men whom men condemn as ill I find so much of goodness still.—Joaquin Miller.

They're Comic, But Not Bitter

AUNT MINNIE and UNCLE RASTUS used to be mighty insulted back in the '90s and even in the '20s when they'd slink back from the mail box with those Valentines that sneered at their single blessedness. But today maybe people are getting more considerate, because most of the current Valentines poke fun at themselves rather than at other people. Instead of the old time Valentine that would accuse a girl of being a flirt or an old maid, today's Valentines say "I'm nuts . . . I may not reek with glamor . . . I may be a bad influence . . . nobody loves me." Of course this subtle technique was probably dreamed up by some male who found it brings exactly the Valentine response he knew it would because . . . girls being girls . . . they love romance.

MACKENZIE'S Column

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

AP World Traveler

Madrid, Jan. 31—Freedom of the press naturally is an ideal which never ceases to flame within the newspaperman, and your correspondent would have been indeed a poor representative of his kind if he hadn't raised this question in his interview with Generalissimo Franco.

The subject is especially close to me because during the generation of my foreign service I've worked under censorship—some of them, terribly harsh—in many countries of both hemispheres. More to the point, world peace depends on real acquaintance among the peoples of all nations. This acquaintance calls for the free exchange of news—not only reports of great events but the story of every day life. I asked the generalissimo if he shared this point of view.

"Only in part," he replied, "for although a better acquaintance among peoples will contribute without doubt to peace among nations, the free exchange of news will only favor it if the news is true and is the result of a faithful and objective judgment. If, on the contrary, the news sins by falsity and calumny, then its effect would be totally adverse and would contribute to encourage differences among nations."

"This is a problem of morality and education, as it is among individuals. Good morality and painstaking education make living together easy, but when these do not exist or are forgotten, living together is impossible. If it is really desired to take the road toward peace, it is necessary to return to the forms of good morality and courtesy damaged by the war."

Franco said the government is seeking to cultivate these ideals through the Spanish press and he continued:

"The Spanish government at the end of the war decreed freedom of information for foreign correspondents."

Spain desires not to conceal its truth from the world, and during the last ten years it has been devoting its attention to preventing the irritation of its relations with other countries by excesses of its press or its radio, and has required from its organs of opinion a moderation which does not deprive them of the noble defense of that which affects us or of the serene and dispassionate criticism of great international events.

"I can assure you that this moderation has favored peace and good relations with the United Nations, and when any newspaper has slipped in criticism, the ambassadors of foreign nations themselves have presented verbal notes asking for that moderation which has been the norm of the Spanish press and which, unfortunately, has not been matched elsewhere."

In this and previous articles I have covered the full ground of my interview with the Spanish chief of state excepting for one sentence which stands by itself.

"If these statements which you have requested," said Franco, "serve to help to reestablish the trusts and increase the bonds and sympathy between our peoples, we shall have contributed to some extent to those ideals of peace of the North American people, which find the most perfect echo in our nation and in my government."

WATER PRESERVES BUTTER

Much relished by the Chinese, soybean butter is now marketed in the United States. It is packed in tins filled with water. The butter does not keep long after opening, but is preserved by keeping in water.

It is estimated there are from three to six million hay fever sufferers in the United States.

Eels travel readily overland from one body of water to another.

Within five minutes after local coal companies had opened in the morning, their trucks were busy loading black diamond coal for consumers who had become lax during last week's warm spell.

Late sleepers yesterday found their supplies of milk frozen and many of the bottles frozen by the sharp decline in temperature. Milk dealers estimated at least two cases of bottles broken from freezing.

Robert Gray, James Barrett, and Wilson McWethy are the members of the high school debating team which will discuss the topic, "Should the government own and operate coal mines?"

In 1938 Eddie Branch, of the Young Men's team in the YMCA basketball league, is the leading scorer of the first half with 73 points in eight games. Jim Cruickshank, of North Warren Presbyterians, is second with 71.

Rev. J. H. Cruickshank, of North Warren, will instruct a Men's Bible Class, which will meet weekly at the YMCA. The group will study the various books of the Bible.

Arrangements have been made by the Turner Radio Shop for the installation of a loudspeaker system at the Woman's Club to enable the Birthday Ball guests to hear the President's greeting.

The American Legion, with the county commissioners, has received application blanks which are to be used by war veterans in applying for bond payments.

New Happiness for Polio Victims

Members of the Master Photo Finishers' and Dealers' Association of America, a nation-wide organization, played a major role in bringing new happiness to more than 50 victims of infantile paralysis in Buffalo, N. Y. As part of its March of Dimes contribution, the Association donated complete sound motion picture equipment and portable screen to Children's Hospital Polio Annex in Buffalo. Laurence Gandillot, Buffalo (left), and James Langtry, Buffalo, chairman of the Association's national convention in Buffalo in March, presented the equipment on behalf of the organization. It was accepted by Judy Burns, polio victim at the hospital, and Donald Anderson, "poster boy" of the 1946 March of Dimes who was in Buffalo at the time.

BROADWAY

By JACK O'BRIAN

NEW YORK — A picture on the desk of Col. J. C. Hyer, Judge Advocate of the 15th Army in Germany during the war criminal trials, led to the signing by RKO Radio Pictures of Martha Hyer, the colonel's daughter.

Ella Logan, the famed Scottish singer who has devoted all her time in the last couple of years to singing for the troops overseas, is the talent scout. While entertaining in Germany, Ella visited Col. Hyer at Bad Nauheim, and saw the youngster's picture. She wrote a Hollywood agent and told him by all means to run like mad to the Pasadena Playhouse and take a look at the girl before he was beat to it by his talent-seeking compatriots.

The agent followed the advice in swift order and the result: Martha Hyer reported to RKO Radio January 7 to begin a long-term contract. The long arm of Hollywood reaches even to Bad Nauheim, and for Martha, that wasn't bad. . . . Goering, Hess, Kesselring et al probably won't do nearly so well.

"MARINKA," which didn't do very well as a Broadway show, certainly did wonderfully for Luba Malina, who has started a highly-paid Hollywood career because of the slick notices she received in that near-turkey. . . . her screen debut will be in "The Strange Adventure of Sinbad."

with Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. and Maureen O'Hara. . . . Jane Deering, of the hit musical "Are You With It," also is being screen tested . . . by Warners. . . . There are three separate record albums being released, by Victor, Columbia and Decca, of the 40-year-old musical "The Red Mill," all propelled to expected big scales by the new revival of that famous Victor Herbert operetta.

MORE than 4,000 movie fans formed a record-busting line extending for blocks at Radio City Music Hall the other day. . . . The Bing-Bergman combination thus proved still to be the biggest cinematic duet to play such sweet financial music in years . . . their "Bells of St. Mary's" is the film which drew such an unprecedented mob.

The line stretched east along 50th Street to Rockefeller Plaza, north to 51st Street, west to The Avenue of the Americas (or Sixth Avenue to you diehards) where police cut the crowd off to permit automobile traffic to go through. . . . Across the street the line doubled back along 51st Street to Fifth Avenue and turned north almost to 52nd Street.

Experts estimated the wait of any individual or group bringing up the rear of this line would be a few minutes more than three hours, or almost as long as it takes for a complete changeover of the capacity of the Music Hall, the largest film house in the world. And it was cold.

Grocery Sold After 42 Years

Announcement was made today that the Pileggi Grocery, 1118 Pennsylvania avenue, west had been sold by Genaro Pileggi and wife to C. A. and Benj. Scalise and the new owners will take over soon. Both are well known in this city and have a large number of friends. They have not purchased the building but merely the stock of groceries.

The Pileggi store was opened in 1903 and met with such success in featuring Italian cheese, etc., that four years later a modern brick block was erected which has been occupied since. Mr. and Mrs. Pileggi featured imported olive oils, Italian cheeses, etc., along with a fine line of groceries and by obliging and courteous treatment of customers built up a large business.

This morning both seemed somewhat saddened to have disposed of the business in which they met so much success but both unite in wishing the new owners success.

SAND MOST SUITABLE

Sand was found to be the most suitable substance for use in hour glasses because it flows at a constant speed under varying degrees of temperature. Liquids are unsatisfactory, since they flow faster when under pressure.

The Wonderful Lamp

When the Clare Tree Major Children's Theatre presents "Aladdin and His Wonderful Lamp" in Warren High School next Monday afternoon and evening under the auspices of the Community PTA Council, children of Warren and vicinity will see one of the best loved tales of all time. "Aladdin" is also one of the oldest of stories; it appeared first in Persia in 947, as part of "One Thousand and One Nights", and was published in France almost 300 years ago in the collection called "Arabian Nights." It is fascinating to watch the progress of a story such as this, which traveled from Persia along the Mediterranean to France and England, and was brought to America by the early settlers. In those days, books were scarce and, even more frequently than now, mothers heard the tale: Tell me a story. When those busy ones were able to stop their tasks, they repeated the same tales their mothers told them. "Aladdin" was one of these, and has thus become part of America's storehouse of tradition. This long endurance must prove that, in addition to its charm, its true meaning has been apparent. For "Aladdin" is much more than a story of wonderful feats. Perhaps the children see only the magic lamp which brings Aladdin everything he wants. Adults know that the magic lamp is the light of knowledge, the most valuable possession anyone can have. Several years ago, when a group of Columbia professors regarded most fairy tales as suspect, Aladdin was acknowledged, even by them, as one which all children should know. Now all Warren children can see it, brought to life with all its thrilling wonders by the Clare Tree Major players, right on their own home stage. Performances are at four and seven o'clock.

What Happens Upon Federal Seizure of Strikebound Plant

By JAMES MARLOW
Washington — (P) — When the government seizes a strike-bound plant or industry, who pays the strikers returning to work and how much do they get?

This is how it goes:

The government takes over. The strikers return at the rate of pay they got when they quit. Any increase depends upon a later decision of the government.

The government can do several things:

1. If the management is willing to cooperate with the government, it just continues to manage as it did in the past, except that the government is supervisor. Which means: Management pays the wages as it always did, out of its income and keeps any profits it makes after paying expenses. This is what happened when the Navy seized the strike-bound oil industry.
2. If the management refuses to cooperate with the government, the government puts in its own staff of managers. It pays operating expenses, including wages, out of government funds. Any profit it makes the government keeps.

The Army says this is what happened when it seized the Montgomery Ward properties.

But what about the wage increase the workers asked? Do they get it? This depends on the individual case.

In the oil industry the strikers who returned to their jobs under government supervision wanted a pay increase. Later a government fact-finding board said they should get an increase of 18 per cent.

But the Navy didn't put that into effect and for this reason: The board said the raise should go into effect when and if the workers returned to a 40-hour week.

The Navy has been operating the plants at 48 hours a week. This means the workers got their old rate of pay for the first 40 hours of work and time-and-a-half for overtime for all hours over 40.

So they work 48 hours and got paid for 52. This gave them more pay than they would have received if they had worked only 40 hours a week with the 18 per cent increase.

Of the 53 refineries seized by the navy, 19 have signed agreements with the union to pay the 18 per cent increase when they return to a 40-hour week. This may take for months. The Navy still holds the other 34 plants which have not signed the agreement.

Enchanted Journey
By Helen R. Woodward

Chapter 30

THREE days later Laura came into Edith's room while she was still sleeping and shook her gently.

"Wake-up, darling! I'm on my way on an assignment that will take me out of town overnight. You'll take good care of Chris for me, won't you?"

Edith blinked, then sat up in bed. She saw that her mother was wearing a smart black traveling costume and carried a small bag.

"This is rather sudden, isn't it?"

"Yes, but you know how I do things, Edith. Come—are you awake? You'll have to look after things, you know."

She's trying to make me feel that I'm important, Edith mused, when she knows very well Dabney can manage without anyone's help! Aloud she said, "Don't worry. We'll get along. But hurry back."

"I'll be back for dinner tomorrow. Goodbye, chicken!"

Laura leaned over the bed and kissed her. "Oh, I forgot. Jodie Lee called and said for you to call her later. She thought you two might have luncheon together and see a movie this afternoon."

"Thanks, mother. Goodbye, darling!"

As Laura's cab sped toward the airport her thoughts were speeding, too. "I had to tell her that small lie about an assignment. I was mortally afraid that she would ask me where I'm going! If I'd said Louisville she'd have asked questions. But she wasn't even interested enough to ask—or perhaps just too absorbed in her own thoughts. Oh, dear, I hope I'm doing the right thing!"

Chris hadn't been any too encouraging about the trip. He was still all for letting Edith and Burk Angus work out their own future. "But how can they with all these miles between them?" Laura argued. "I've just got to do what I can!"

And so it was with some trepidation that she sent the telegram to Burk. "Meet me in Louisville, Brown Hotel, 10 A.M. Tuesday morning if convenient. Laura Lacey Collins."

She felt better when she had Burk's reply. "See you Tuesday as requested. Burk Angus."

And now she was on her way to Louisville.

SHE was as excited and nervous as a girl on her first date next morning when she was informed that he was waiting for her in the lobby.

She would have known him even if the desk clerk hadn't pointed out the man who had called for her. And Burk, too, seemed to know that this lovely woman was Edith's mother.

Laura smiled and held out her hand. "Hello, Burk!"

"How do you do, Mrs. Collins?"

"Shall we find a quiet place where we can talk?"

"Yes," he answered. "I have a spot all picked out just over there."

"Fine."

Laura looked at this man whom her daughter loved and felt proud that Edith had made such a choice. He was as brown as a berry, he looked hardened and seasoned by outdoor labor. You could detect integrity and strength of character in the set of his chin and jaw. Unbreakable and unbendable were the words that came to her. "But too young to have learned much tolerance yet," she judged.

She said sincerely, "First let me offer you my sympathy. Edith has told me that your sister was a very lovely person."

She saw his eyes fall and a line of pain etched itself about his mouth. He said, "Thank you!" in an almost inaudible voice. Then the full force of his gaze was upon her again. "I've got to know! Did Edith send you?"

Laura shook her head. "No, I came to find out something for myself!"

"I see!" Somehow she sensed that he was disappointed. "What do you want to find out?"

She was silent for a long time, studying him. She had never felt so ill at ease, so unsure of herself. She realized that she would simply have to take her courage in both hands and ask the questions she had come to ask.

She began to speak very slowly. "Edith's happiness means more to me than my very life, Burk."

Sometimes people fail, because of pride, or perhaps because of fear of meddling — to say the few words that might bring happiness to those they love. She leaned forward in her chair. "I've got to know how you feel about Edith!"

HE SAT very still and Laura watched his face. She saw the changing expressions that swept across his features. Eagerness, longing — then resignation and despair.

"I've done the very best I can to put her out of my life, Mrs. Collins, but—" she noted that there was a ring of moisture around his lips and her heart went out to him in pity. "But it's no use. I love her with my whole heart and am the most miserable wretch on earth without her!"

She took a deep breath, realizing that it was the first good one she'd had since meeting him. "Then perhaps you'd be interested to know that I was shocked at the change I saw in her. I knew at once that there was more than grief at your sister's death, or disappointment in her father, troubling her. I found out that she loves you in the same way and that she's miserable, too!"

He did not answer. Laura found herself growing nervous again. Was he going to allow his stubbornness to keep them apart after all? She put her hand on his arm. "If you really love her, Burk, won't you give her a chance to prove that even though she is Edith's daughter, she is a person in her own right, and that she is steady and dependable and trustworthy?"

Suddenly he was smiling and she was amazed at the change it made in his appearance. "Like you!" Burk said, and now there was excitement in his voice, eagerness in his eyes. "I see now—seeing you explains everything. I didn't understand about Edith!"

"That's the nicest thing anyone ever said to me," Laura smiled. "Won't you come back to New York with me—now?"

He did not hesitate in his answer. "Yes, I will. Because it's the thing I want most in the world to do!"

Chapter 30

NIGHT was beginning to fall as Edith made her way across the park toward home, an early nightfall that presaged the coming autumn.

It had not been a happy afternoon for Edith. She had been completely at loose ends. Of course there were a dozen people she could have called up, but she had preferred to be alone.

What was she to do with her life? A few more days like this and she'd end up in the madhouse! Tomorrow, she decided, she'd begin her search for a job. Chris and Laura would probably object, but she'd have to decide the matter for herself.

She'd had a letter from her Aunt Josie that morning which had started off a train of thoughts concerning things best forgotten. Gallant Lady's coat seemed to miss her. Old Eugenia talked about Edith all the time. Josie wished she might be at Roselands for her wedding. The place was utterly desolate without Barbara—and as for poor Whit, Dr. Bennett said something would have to be done to cure him of the mad obsession for his son. It was going to be bad for the little boy to be the object of such adoration when he grew older. Whit rarely left the house now and was so much under foot that he made a nuisance of himself.

The letter did not mention Burk Angus.

She was thinking now of how that trip to Kentucky began how in spite of her disturbed emotions over Chris, and her mother's wedding, it had stretched before her like an enchanted journey into some delightful unknown world. It had been an enchanted journey that led her to Burk Angus, but she could see now that tragedy had always been lurking in the shadows, until finally the culmination had come in Barbara's death.

Chris had insisted on taking her to the theater last night and to a very gay night spot afterwards. She had been more depressed than ever when she got home.

Chris said, "I must say I think you could show a little more appreciation of my efforts at entertainment!"

She felt very tired, and suddenly, very old. She smiled wanly. "I'm sorry, Chris—it was kind of you to try, anyway. I guess I'm just sort of—not feeling very well."

"We shouldn't have let you go away!" he said crossly.

She had asked rather suddenly, "Where did mother go anyway, Chris?"

He had seemed to hesitate a moment before he answered. "Somewhere out of town."

"I know that, but suppose we waited here rather suddenly?"

"Well, I imagine Crosby would know where to reach her."

She thought it rather odd that Laura should have gone away without telling either Edith or Chris exactly where she had gone. But then people were always doing odd things these days, it seemed.

The lights were coming on in the shop windows as she turned into her own street. They were like little pools of brilliance on the sidewalks. She was glad that her mother was coming home tonight. She still had faith in her mother to believe that Laura would help her work out the solution to her life. She had been disappointed because Laura had seemed to have no word of comfort or encouragement for her the other night. But she had to believe that if everyone else in the world failed her, Laura would never let her down!

She turned into the doorway of the apartment building, took the elevator and reached her floor quickly. She stopped in the foyer to look over the mail, still hoping that in spite of everything a letter might come one day. She'd keep on looking until at last that hope died and she would accept the truth that Burk did not mean to write, ever.

IT WAS growing dark in the living room. Dabney had not lighted the lamps yet, but the tall man who stood in the curve of the window was plainly visible. She stopped abruptly. This man was too tall for Chris!

Her heart began to beat in hard, thudding jerks that shook her body furiously. Her tongue felt dry against the roof of her mouth. Had the madman she dreaded really overtaken her?

Burk Angus said very gently, "Edith, my darling—don't be alarmed. It's really I—"

He came and took her hand in his. Even in the gloom she could see that his eyes were pleading. "I've been such an awful fool. Edith! But I just can't stand it without you! Oh, darling, I hope you feel that way, too!"

A rush of such delightful warm feeling flowed over her that she caught her breath at its loveliness. "Burk's daughter, she is a person in her own right, and that she is steady and dependable and trustworthy!"

Her mother! The tears flowed unchecked down Edith's cheeks. No—Laura would never let her down!

There were a lot of questions that would have to be asked and answered, but they would have to wait. Now it was enough to know that Burk's arms were around her, to feel the breathless ecstasy of his nearness, to know that he would always be close beside her, the answer to every dream her heart had hoped for. She had been thinking about that enchanted journey on which she had started that day, which now seemed so long ago—but in this moment she knew that her enchanted journey had just begun!

Ailing Carter Glass Clings To Senate Seat

Sen. Carter Glass, 83-year-old Democrat of Virginia, sits partially paralyzed in a Washington hotel and defies all predictions as to when he will resign. He hasn't been in Senate chamber since 1942.

By DOUGLAS LARSEN
NEA Staff Correspondent

Washington, Jan. 31—(NEA)—Mystery and rumor surround the proud Virginia gentleman, Sen. Carter Glass, who sits partially paralyzed in his apartment in the Mayflower Hotel and who has been unable to answer roll call in the Senate for the past three and a half years.

He has now defied all predictions as to when he would resign. It was believed he would give up his seat on the first of the year. No statement was made, and it was believed he was waiting for his 88th birthday, Jan. 4, to make the announcement. When that date passed it was rumored that for political reasons he was waiting for the official change in governors in Virginia on Jan. 16.

But nothing was forthcoming that day. This left even those persons who are supposed to be close to Glass puzzled.

The day before his birthday the Supreme Court made a decision which would let the ailing Senator keep his title until 1949 when his term expires. The Court dismissed an outster petition filed by a Virginia county treasurer. The petition charged that Glass "actually vacated and abandoned" his office.

Only his doctor, relatives and a few personal friends from the Senate got to see him. No press interviews are permitted. The last public statement he made was to support former President Roosevelt during the 1944 campaign. This conclusion has added fuel to the rumors and cloaked his condition in mystery. Family intrigue, political ramifications, Virginia state politics and patronage reasons have all been speculated upon as part of the curious situation which keeps the aged Virginian tenaciously hanging on to his job.

Persons in the Senate who occasionally get in to see him say that his legs are paralyzed as a result of a heart attack in 1942. He is placed in a chair in the afternoon and receives infrequent visitors. He is on a strict diet. Lately, they say, he has developed a great interest in music, especially symphonies.

The Senator takes an active part in running the newspapers he owns in Virginia. Aside from listening to music it is said he displays an interest in only the Foreign Relations Committee of the Senate and the Banking and Currency Committee. He still is nominally a member of both.

Persons who defend his reluctance to resign say he still exerts an influence on important events of the Senate. On 26 of the important Senate roll calls in 1944 he paired a vote and four of the important 26 in 1945 he paired his vote on two. Pairing a vote is a device by which absentee Senators cancel an "aye" with a "nay."

Although there is some antagonism to the Senator now because he refuses to resign, the career of the "unreconstructed rebel," as former President Roosevelt called him, is still a vivid memory to many persons.

He was appointed to the House of Representatives in 1903 to fill a vacancy. Before that he rose from cub reporter to owner of the papers in his home town of Lynchburg, Va. He served in the House until 1918, when he resigned to become Secretary of Treasury under President Wilson.

For the first 10 years in the House he didn't make a speech on the floor. When he did it was in defense of the then-pending Federal Reserve Act. Glass is considered the father of that legislation, which is known as one of the historic accomplishments of the Wilson administration.

After his cabinet job Glass was sent to the Senate to fill a position vacated by death. Glass became chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee when the Democrats took control. He supported Roosevelt during the first campaign but later opposed him on many issues.

When elected for his present term Glass was given a signal honor. Poor health kept him from taking the oath, so the Senate came to him. For the second time in its history that body authorized an oath to be administered away from the chambers. Attired in bedroom slippers and bathrobe, Glass took the oath from the late Col. Edwin A. Halsey at his Lynchburg home.

Here's Peek at Future—Radar-Controlled Air Freighters

Huge, pilotless freight planes, like the one in photo above, are seen as real possibilities for speedy transportation of cargoes between cities. As visualized, the crewless cargo ships will be completely controlled from the ground by radar. Diagram at bottom shows how beam signals, set up by ground transmitters set suitable distances apart, will guide the planes along their routes.

Jap Supreme Commander's Swords Come in a Box

130,000 JAPS HAD BEEN KILLED by Admiral Mountbatten's South East Asia Command at the time of the Jap surrender, when Field-Marshal Count Terauchi, Jap Supreme Commander in that war, pleaded to be excused surrendering his sword because he was stricken with paralysis. The British Admiral granted this plea, but said that the Jap Field Marshal was to make formal surrender as with the help of an aide-de-camp (left), he bowed low and handed over to the Allied Supreme Commander not one but two swords complete with their case. High-ranking officers of the Allied Command, in which every 83 men in a hundred were from the British Commonwealth of Nations, witnessed the ceremony held in Saigon, French Indo-China.

New Crosley Is 1000-Pound Midget

Here's the postwar Crosley, and its size can be judged by comparison with the young woman beside it. Big feature of the car is the 59-pound, four-cylinder engine, built of thin sheet steel stampings instead of heavy forgings and castings. Cylinder walls, of chromolybdenum steel, are only one-sixteenth inch thick. Power Crosley, Jr., says a gallon of gas will take the car 50 miles at 35 mph. Entire car weighs 1000 pounds, is two-door sedan with streamlined aluminum body, 80-inch wheelbase and 145-inch overall length.

Prints Photos Directly on Wall

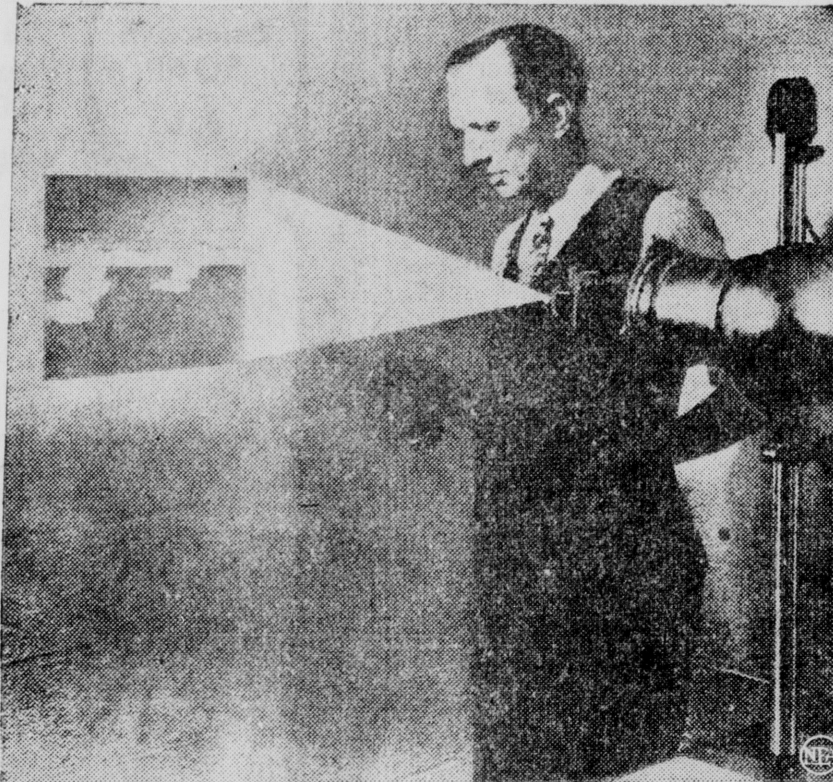

Photo murals can now be printed directly on a wall, just as you would make a print on a piece of paper. Scientists at the Glenn L. Martin Company's Baltimore laboratory perfected a jelly-like emulsion which, when melted, may be applied to the wall surface with a brush, sponge or rag. When it dries, the negative is held against this sensitized surface, light is applied and development of the picture proceeds normally. The entire operation is carried out under darkroom conditions, with ruby light. Above, an operator is making a print on a wall.

Oil Tank At Cooper Tract Catches Fire

Sheffield firemen on Tuesday were given a long run of 28 4/10 miles to Cooper Tract where they saved an oil tank by the use of Foamite. The blaze started in an empty oil tank which stood near one that was filled with oil on the C. R. McNeal lease. The full tank was being heated in readiness to be run and the full tank contained about 70 barrels of oil.

For some undetermined reason the empty tank suddenly exploded setting fire to the immediate area and igniting the oil in the filled tank. An alarm was turned in for the Sheffield firemen and with their number three truck and 12 men they made a fast dash for the scene of the fire. On arrival they used Foamite and covered the top of the tank in such a way that the fire was soon smothered out.

Another empty tank which stood nearby also ignited and was badly scorched but not greatly damaged.

The loss to the owner is estimated at about $400 and the firemen were on the job about two hours and did some excellent work.

This was the second alarm the Sheffield firemen have had this year the other being to Mayburg where a dwelling was destroyed and two children burned to death.

Y Men's Club Brings Water Expert Here

Warren aquacade fans are in for a treat come February 8 and 9 when "Corky" Kellam, the "human cork" giant weighing 333 pounds and one of the star comedians of Billy Rose's Aquacade at the New York and San Francisco Worlds Fairs, will be the feature of a great water show at the YWCA here.

"Corky," who swam 225 miles non-stop in 96 hours from Cairo, Illinois, to Memphis, Tennessee, in the Mississippi River, will give four performances on the above dates, the entire show being sponsored by the Y Men's Club. Performances will be held at four and eight o'clock on February 8 and 9.

Kellam's appearance here will be the first time that the world's greatest long distance and endurance swimmer has made in this section of the state. "Corky" comes here direct from the world famous Steel Pier in Atlantic City, N. J.

Being a comedian, most of Kellam's stunt will be presented in comedy. Fans will see him eat and smoke under water; juggle seven glasses in seven different positions while swimming; do the famous "Leap for Life" while tied to a chair in sitting position and left to attempt to escape in the deep end of the pool; and many other under-water stunts.

Top scoring honors were taken by Nicklas of the Bradford team who turned in 104 out of a possible 200. Both Dahle and Schultz of the locals were right behind him, however, with 193 each.

By TOM SHRIVER

Harrisburg, Jan. 31.—(P)—Second-half title races get under way in Pennsylvania's scholastic basketball ranks tomorrow with Allentown in the east and Warren in the west still the teams that must be beaten in the drive toward a state title.

Allentown has rolled up 14 straight this year, and 31 over a two-year period to clinch the first-half crown in the Eastern Pennsylvania Conference. The Canaries meet Bethlehem at home in the second half opener as Hazleton at Easton with Pottsville drawing a bye.

Warren, after its winning streak was snapped by Oil City, bounded back to take the measure of Erie Technical last week and then moved into a tie for first place in the Section Two, District Ten, race by crushing Franklin, 36-22, to make #14 wins in 15 starts.

Nesquehoning plays at Blythe Township; Mahanoy City at Mauch Chunk; Tanawana and Summit Hill, and Lansford at Coalbrook.

In the North Schuylkill League, Frackville, triumphant in 14 consecutive games and first-half champion, is home to Butler Township; Mahanoy Township plays at Gilbert; St. Clair at Shenandoah; Ashland at West Mahanoy township, and Girardville gets a bye.

The Lackawanna Valley League completes its first half schedule tomorrow with loop-leading Taylor at Scranton Tech; Old Forge at Olyphant; West Scranton at Throop; Dickson City at Scranton Central and Carbondale at Dunmore.

Lock Haven, leader of the Central States League, but beaten by Williamsport, 50-31 earlier in the week, meets Renovo at home with Jersey Shore at Bellefonte; and South Williamsport at State College.

Three Assistant Coaches At Pitt Resign; Refuse To Act Under Rule of Shaughnessy

By ROBERT K. MOOREHEAD

Pittsburgh, Jan. 31.—(P)—The University of Pittsburgh's smouldering football cauldron was bubbling today with the resignations of all three of the school's assistant coaches—but there's on "if" attached.

The trio—Charles (Doc.) Hartwig, Bobby Hoel and Stan Glenn—told athletic director James Hagan yesterday that they "do not care" to continue coaching if Clark Shaughnessy comes back next season as head mentor.

Hagan said the three assistants had tried to resign last Nov. 8, but that he had persuaded them to remain for the rest of the 1945 season. He said their action was referred to the faculty committee on athletics.

Shaughnessy said he had no official word of the resignations, and added that he would not quit as head coach.

"I'm not mad at anybody. I still think I can produce a winner here," declared the T-formation authority, who has coached Pitt grid teams through three unhappy wartime seasons.

"It is because I think I can win regularly at Pitt under peace-time conditions that I intend to stay," Shaughnessy continued.

"Inasmuch as I haven't heard one single hint from anyone in authority at Pitt that I'm going to be let out, I'm going on the belief that I'll remain. It's a kind of challenge."

Air Commander In Hawaii Testifies

Washington, Jan. 31—(P)—The 1941 naval air commander in Hawaii testified today that he did not learn of a war warning sent from Washington Nov. 27, 1941, until days after the Japanese attacked Dec. 7, 1941.

Vice Admiral P. M. L. Bellinger told the senate-house committee investigating the disaster that during October, November and December of 1941 his only information concerning U. S. relations with Japan and the imminence of war "came from the Honolulu newspapers."

Bellinger was called by the committee to explain why no long-range reconnaissance planes were out on Dec. 7 to catch the Japanese carriers stealing up on Pearl Harbor.

"The information available to me—limited and unofficial as it was—did not indicate that I should recommend to the commander in chief, Pacific fleet (Admiral Husband E. Kimmel) that distant patrol plane search for the security of Pearl Harbor be undertaken at that time," Bellinger said.

Bellinger's statement, which he read to the committee, did not say whether he would have recommended long-range flights if he had seen the "war warning."

Inquiry Into Rouse Tragedy Is Completed

Private services will be held from the home of Garner Wilcox, Pittsfield, Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in memory of Percy Wilcox, 70, who met accidental death
Tuesday while at work at the Rouse Hospital. Friends will be received at the Wilcox home until the hour of the service. It was inadvertently stated Wednesday that the funeral was to be held today.

The county commissioners with Sheriff L. E. Linder and deputy S.
Secor yesterday joined in the official investigation of the tragedy that occurred while Mr. Wilcox was engaged in making repairs to pens in the barn used to house pigs at the hospital. Most of the day was spent in inspecting the interior of the building where the accident occurred after which it was announced that no construction was found which could have caused the injury serving an artery causing Mr. Wilcox to bleed to death.

Reconstructing the tragedy the officials are of the opinion that Mr.
Wilcox was gored by a boar in the pen where he was at work. It is believed that while engaged in the operation of fastening a hasp to the gate Mr. Wilcox doubtless placed his left foot inside the pen and before he could escape the animal rushed him sinking one of its tusks in the leg with such force as to sever the artery, nerve and muscles.

The untimely death of Mr. Wilcox was learned with keen sorrow by a host of friends in the community as well as among the employees and inmates of the hospital.
